35—After grant of administration no person to have power to sue as executor

Subject to the provisions of this Act, after any grant of administration no person shall have power to sue or prosecute any action, or otherwise act as executor of the deceased, as to the estate comprised in or affected by such grant, until such administration has been recalled or revoked.

- (b) an executor appointed in a will survives the testator, but dies without having taken probate, or
- (c) an executor named in a will is cited to take probate, and does not appear to such citation, the right of such person or executor in respect of the executorship shall wholly cease, and the representation of the testator and the administration of his estate shall and may, without any further renunciation, go, devolve, and be committed in like manner as if such person had not been appointed executor.

37—If executor or administrator out of jurisdiction, special administrator may be appointed

If at the expiration of twelve months from the death of any person the executor to whom probate of the will, or the administrator to whom administration of the personal estate or of the estate of such deceased person has been granted, is residing out of this State, the Court may, upon the application of a spouse, or of any creditor or next of kin, or of any person interested under the will, or of the Public Trustee, grant to the applicant special administration, limited to the collection, management, and distribution of the estate of such deceased person, and to cease upon the return of the executor or administrator to this State, and an order being made for the rescission thereof as hereinafter mentioned.

42—Revocation of grants not to prejudice actions

- (2) Upon an order being made under subsection (1) hereof the proceedings shall be continued in the name of or against the new or original executor or administrator in like manner as if the proceedings had been originally commenced by or against such new or original executor, or administrator, but subject to such conditions and variations, if any, as the Court directs.

43—Protection to persons acting in reliance on probate or administration

- (1) The revocation or rescission of probate or administration granted under this Act does not render the executor or administrator liable for any prior act done by him in good faith and in reliance on the probate or administration.
- (2) Subject to this Act, where a person, acting in good faith and in reliance on probate or administration granted under this Act, deals with an asset of the estate of a deceased person, he incurs no personal liability by so doing notwithstanding that the probate or administration may subsequently prove to be invalid or be revoked or rescinded.
