 - (a) the applicable review proceedings are (to the extent necessary) transferred to the Supreme Court constituted of a single Judge (the review court) and jurisdiction is vested by force of this paragraph in the review court to hear and determine the applicable review proceedings; and

- (g) the court must, in sentencing the person for an offence against section 31(2), take into account the former sentence and, if it is in the interests of justice to do so, may determine that the former sentence (whether already served or being served) is taken to be the sentence in satisfaction of the offence against section 31(2) (together with any other offences if the former sentence consisted of 1 penalty that was imposed in respect of multiple offences) or, if the court does not propose to make such a determination, sentence the person in accordance with the following requirements, subject to any modifications or additional requirements prescribed by the regulations:

 - (B) if the former sentence consisted of 1 penalty that was imposed in respect of multiple offences, 1 of which was the offence charged against section 31(1)—the review court may declare the period of the non-pecuniary penalty attributable to the offence charged against section 31(1) and that period must be deducted from the period imposed in respect of the section 31(2) proceedings.
- (2) The review court may remit section 31(2) proceedings to a court of summary jurisdiction for trial if satisfied that it is appropriate in the circumstances of the case and in such a case—
